

Cupertino Library Foundation Presents

Cyber Security Talk Series

“Fake News” – How it Spreads and What You Can Do

by Susan Nash & Ryan Moore

Are you bombarded with COVID-19 information and election related information? Can you identify facts from fiction? Are you sure you're not helping spread false information or misinformation from less-than-credible sources?

Come listen to and ask questions of our speakers from Stanford Center on Longevity and Stanford Social Media Lab. Get some tips and tools to identify facts from fiction, opinions from reality, satire from sincerity.

Sunday October 4, 2020

2:00 pm

REGISTER at

<https://tinyurl.com/CLF-Cyber-Series>

for Zoom Information

About the Speakers

Susan Nash is a Visiting Scholar at the Stanford Center on Longevity, working on a project to teach digital literacy to older adults. She is also the Encore Fellow with the San Jose Mayor's Office working on the City's Age-Friendly City initiative.

Ryan Moore is a PhD student in the Stanford Social Media Lab. His research focuses on understanding how people, particularly older adults, use the internet and new technologies to consume information.

Register at <https://tinyurl.com/CLF-Cyber-Series>

Website: www.cupertino.libraryfoundation.org

email: cyberseries@cupertinolibraryfoundation.org